Current Class Code/Title: 399F Safety Officer 1

Current Salary Range/Rate: Range 49

Proposed Class Code/Title: Occupational Safety and Health Specialist 1

Proposed Salary Range/Rate: Range 54

Class Series Concept: This series is responsible for the planning, implementation, and administration of an agency or higher education institution comprehensive occupational, safety, health, and industrial hygiene program, to ensure alignment and compliance with federal and state mandated occupational safety and health programs in accordance with the Department of Labors' Occupational Safety and Health Act and the Washington Industrial Safety and Health Act. Positions serve a dual role by monitoring and measuring activities for regulatory compliance while also working to eliminate or minimize employee occupational illness and injury by teaching, promoting, and emphasizing workplace safety, health, and hygiene standards and best practices. Positions evaluate the work environment to assess existing and potential occupational safety, health, and hygiene hazards and implement mitigation strategies.

Occupational safety, health, and hygiene programs and subprograms include a variety of components including but not limited to indoor air quality, confined spaces, respiratory protection, blood borne pathogens and bio hazards, wildfire smoke, fire safety, hazardous waste, environmental or chemical contaminants and toxins, noise dosimetry and hearing conservation, air, dust, gas, vapor, and water sampling, ergonomics, accident prevention and reporting, injury reporting and review, fall protection, defensive driving, CPR and first aid, personal protective equipment, worksite inspections, hazardous environmental and chemical exposure monitoring, radiation monitoring, compliance assessment, testing, and reporting, high-risk or unusual hazard environments, hazard identification, evaluation and control recommendations.

This work is performed in a variety of worksites including but not limited to public access areas of agencies and higher education institutions, laboratories, office buildings, maintenance and other facilities, industrial locations, highway and other construction field sites, and marine work environments, hospitals, medical and other care facilities, vehicles, equipment, heavy equipment/automotive shops, parks and recreational sites, homeless encampments, and other locations operated by agencies and higher education institutions where work is performed.

Section C: Classification

This series is distinguished from the Occupational Safety and Health Professional series and Compliance Industrial Safety & Health Investigator series specific to the Department of Labor and Industries, by the following: The focus of the work for this series is specific to the occupational safety, health, and industrial hygiene of the agency or higher education institution and its staff, contractors, environments, buildings, work sites, etc. The OSHPro and CISHI series are specific to all labor and industries and encompasses all employers within Washington state both public and private.

Definition: This is the entry level of the series. Positions perform tasks relating to the planning and implementation of accident prevention and occupational health and safety programs as part of overall a component of environmental health and safety activities. Under close general supervision, positions perform basic inspections of local facilities, equipment, and operations and may assist with industrial hygiene activities to ensure compliance with institution, state and federal safety standards, and codes.

Positions may also administer an agency/institution's comprehensive employee occupational safety and health program to comply with state and the Department of Labor's Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA) and the Washington Industrial Safety and Health Act (WISHA) rules, regulations and codes including developing and implementing any agency or geographic unique safety and health programs.

Distinguishing Characteristics: Positions at this level work independently within narrowly established guidelines in making decisions regarding work processes or methods used. Assignments are typically limited in scope to specific administer an agency/institutions comprehensive safety and health programs, or manage a major component which is characterized as a subprograms, or a portion of an agency's the total safety, and health, and industrial hygiene program, i.e., ergonomics, compliance, infectious disease, blood borne pathogens, etc. Positions inspect agency/institutional facilities, equipment, and operations to ensure compliance with state and federal safety standards and codes. All positions report to a higher-level Occupational Safety and Health Specialist or other position responsible for the occupational safety and health program for an assigned entity such as a geographic area (region or district), an institution, etc.

This is not a statewide assignment.

Explanation: This request is from the Department of Transportation for class plan maintenance to the Safety Officer 1 classification. The updates include adding a class series concept, updates to the definition and distinguishing characteristics, and salary range increase. These changes are a result of the 2025-2027 Collective Bargaining Negotiations and Budget Process.

Current Class Code/Title: 422I Hearings Examiner 1

Current Salary Range/Rate: 55

Proposed Class Code/Title: 422I Legal Examiner 1

Proposed Salary Range/Rate: 63

Class Series Concept:

This professional legal series performs legal analysis and case preparation on behalf of a state agency, board, or commission. Positions perform legal work, such as recommending disciplinary actions to a board or commission, developing and/or participating in case strategy, conducting legal research, gathering expert witnesses, drafting legal pleadings, correspondence, agreements, briefs, and negotiating settlements or conditions.

The work performed by Legal Examiners is separate and distinct from the Financial Legal Examiner series whose focus is on examinations of regulated financial entities; the work of a Legal Examiner is aimed at assisting a state agency, board, or commission by serving as a legal resource for regulated statewide programs. The principal activity of the Hearings Examiner series is the conduct of quasi-judicial hearings and appeals within the framework of the Administrative Procedures Act and of administrative and procedural law.

Cases heard are usually generated by a license applicant or licensee, a benefits recipient or employer, or other party regulated by a state department whose administrative decisions they are trying to change.

The Hearings Examiner presides and renders decisions. The appellant, applicant or complainant is often represented by counsel; the responsible state department is represented by an Assistant Attorney General. If the appellant is not represented by counsel, the Hearings Examiner is responsible to assist him in clarifying the facts of his case during the hearing. Most Examiners are authorized to subpoena witnesses if they believe this is necessary to make the facts clear, though in most cases presentation of the case is left completely to the advocates.

Section C: Classification

Hearings Examiners ordinarily determine and report the findings of fact and conclusions of law, and issue proposed orders which are binding on all parties unless exceptions are filed shortly thereafter. Within this same series, higher level Hearings Examiners may review excepted cases, but their review (as the Superior Court's would ultimately be) is limited to the original hearing records, the findings, and the exceptions.

Cases heard within this series vary in complexity from the simplest uncontested cases, such as produce trucking applications, to the multiple company utility rate hearings involving millions of dollars, many attorneys, expert witnesses, technical specialists in several fields and weeks of testimony. Among the various departments, hearings are conducted regarding: liquor license violations; industrial injury indemnities; unemployment and public assistance payments; employee taxes and premiums; rail, trucking, and utility franchises; transportation and utility rates; public complaints against regulated companies; and numerous related issues.

Definition:

This is the entry-level of the series. Positions work under general supervision and draft routine pleadings and provide professional legal work for state agencies, boards, or commissions based on their respective regulatory authority. Positions in this class can usually be described as either the first three or the last three of the statements below:

Cases usually are discussed with supervisor prior to hearing, and prior to the writing of finding of facts, conclusions of law, and proposed orders.

Nearly all assigned hearings involve the direct interest of only one party and the department.

Assigned hearings seldom involve more than one attorney for each participant and may often involve no attorney.

Most cases handled are ex parte (uncontested) for which hearings may or may not be required.

Distinguishing Characteristics:

May be used as an in-training level.

Explanation:

This is a request from the Department of Health and Department of Licensing for class plan maintenance to the Hearings Examiner 1. The updates include revisions to the title, class series concept, definition, distinguishing characteristics, and a salary range increase. These changes are a result of the 2025-2027 Collective Bargaining Negotiations and Budget Process.

Definition:

Positions perform one or more of the following:

- Plans, conducts, and provides moderately complex legal analysis, and case preparation; OR
- Advises and/or consults on moderately complex investigations regarding enforcement of regulations for licensure regulated by a state agency, board, or commission.

Most Hearings Examiners 2 work on a territorial or rotational basis handling mill run cases of the department. In some departments, the caseload may be screened to eliminate uncontroverted cases or the unusually complex hearings as described under Hearings Examiner 3.

All Hearings Examiners 2 conduct hearings of contested issues in which two or more parties are represented by counsel, and in which they are regularly required to make independent determinations of procedure and admissibility of evidence without supervisory assistance. Findings and proposed orders are normally written at a headquarters office where technical or supervisory assistance is usually available though infrequently requested or offered.

Most Hearings Examiners 2 are held directly responsible for the entire process of pre-hearing conferences, hearings, and issuance of proposed findings and orders for all cases assigned. Most Examiners 2 are assigned 10 to 20 new cases a month and are expected to publish findings within two to five months of the assignment.

Proposed Class Code/Title: 501L Data Science & Informatics Specialist 1

Proposed Salary Range/Rate: 68

Class Series Concept:

Data Science and Informatics are professions that utilize raw data to help an organization make data-driven decisions, enhancing the efficiency of industry-specific government services and programs that contribute to the overall well-being of the community. Positions in this series are either a Data Scientist or an Informatics Specialist, as described below.

Data Scientists utilize mathematics, statistics, specialized programming, advanced analytics, artificial intelligence, and machine learning to extract knowledge from structured and unstructured data. As a Data Scientist, the positions focus is on data engineering, advanced data analytics and modeling, and applying machine learning techniques to uncover actionable insights hidden in an organization's data. Examples of the responsibilities include optimizing raw data sets and modeling to ensure data processes and products are efficient for cloud computing; accelerating data into action by providing a comprehensive and robust understanding of data and how it impacts industry-specific government services, programs, and the community; and creating scientific and/or analytic products and visualizations.

Informatics Specialists process raw data and turn it into usable information for the design, development, and maintenance of information/data systems. As an Informatician, the position works directly with information technology staff, industry and organizational partners, and end users, in the design, implementation, and modernization of information/data systems. Informaticians use their knowledge of system interoperability and industry-specific data standards for how data must be stored, exchanged and protected. Informaticians may also engage in the creation of analytic products and visualizations.

This series is separate and distinct from the Data Consultant class series. Data Consultants are primarily focused on utilizing existing data from databases for the purpose of compiling data, providing reports, and analysis; whereas the Data Science and Informatics Specialists extract knowledge from structured and unstructured data sources and directly participate in the design and modernization of information/data systems and their components.

This series is separate and distinct from the Information Technology Professional Structure. Data Science and Informatics Specialists leverage technology by using computers and technical knowledge to perform their duties as super users, not as IT professionals.

Definition:

Position is either a data scientist or informatician as described in the class series concept, and participates in assignments and/or projects performing two or more of the following:

- Assists in data collection, data validation, data cleaning, data analysis, preprocessing, and integration of structured and unstructured data from multiple sources.
- Assists in the development of data algorithms, modeling, and statistical analysis.
- Utilizes data visualization software.
- Provide a knowledge and application information vocabularies, interoperability, and industry-specific data standards for how data must be stored, exchanged and protected.
- Works collaboratively with higher level Data Science and Informatics Specialists, IT professionals, and business area staff on a data-driven project.
- Assists in the reviews of system designs to ensure they meet interoperability standards and requirements.

Distinguishing Characteristics:

This is the entry-level of this professional series. Positions work under close supervision to perform assignments that support data-driven projects and are often working under the guidance of a higher-level professional.

Explanation:

This is a request from the Department of Health and the Health Care Authority for establishment of the Data Science & Informatics Specialist 1. This is a result of the 2025-2027 Collective Bargaining Negotiations and Budget Process.

Distinguishing Characteristics:

Employees in this class accomplish broader assignments, entailing greater skill and/or more technical judgment, than the Engineering Aide #1 assignments. For example, engineering computations are performed by employees in both classes; but the computations usually made by the Engineering Aide #1 would entail use of limited engineering formulas while the Engineering Aide #2 would select one of several formulas for application to a specific problem. These broader assignments are not as general as those expected of an Engineering Aide 3 (see specification 6007). However, it is expected that incumbents will be frequently assigned broader or more complex work as a matter of training. Promotion is normally by competitive examination.
