2. Level of Supervision – Review the levels of supervision required and indicate the level that most accurately describes your supervision of the employee's position.

Supervision required is determined by the following:

- Amount of higher-level oversight the employee receives.
- Latitude the employee has in determining which work methods and priorities to apply.
- Scope of decision-making authority delegated to the employee.
- Extent to which the employee's completed assignments are reviewed.

Direct/Close

- Employee is assigned duties according to defined procedures.
- Employee performs a variety of routine duties within established policies and procedures or by referring to the written guidelines.
- Work is reviewed for accuracy, completion, and adherence to instructions and established standards, processes and procedures as necessary and upon completion.

General Supervision

- Employee performs recurring assignments without daily oversight following established guidelines, policies, procedures and work methods.
- Employee prioritizes day-to-day work tasks. Supervisor provides guidance and must approve deviation from established guidelines, policies, procedures and work methods.
- Decision-making is limited in context to the completion of work tasks. Completed work is consistent with established guidelines, policies, procedures and work methods. Supervisory guidance is provided in new or unusual situations.
- May develop procedures for performance of a variety of duties within the scope of the job.
- Perform complex duties within established guidelines.
- Work is periodically reviewed for compliance with guidelines, policies and procedures.

General Direction

- Employee independently performs all assignments using knowledge of established policies and work objectives with little direct oversight from supervisor.
- Employee plans and organizes their own work and assists in determining priorities and deadlines. May deviate from standard work methods, guidelines or procedures in order to meet work objectives.
- Employee exercises independent decision-making authority and discretion to decide which work methods to use, tasks to perform and procedures to follow to meet work objectives.
- Completed work is reviewed for effectiveness in producing expected results.
- Employee establishes procedures for attaining specific goals and objectives in a broad area of work.

Administrative Direction

- Employee receives guidance in terms of broad goals and overall objectives and is responsible for establishing the methods to attain them.
- Employee works independently within the scope and context of rules, regulations and employer objectives.

- Employee independently plans, designs and carries out programs, projects and studies in accordance with broad policy statements or legal requirements.
- Employee exercises independent decision-making authority for determining work objectives and goals to be accomplished.
- Employee is in charge of an area of work and formulates policy for this area but does not necessarily have final authority for approving policy.
